Prep Hoops Writing Internship

The Prep Hoops Network is looking for savvy college journalism students to cover basketball prospects of all levels. Students will have the opportunity to work with a rapidly growing company that is active in both online media coverage and event promotion for the top high school basketball players in the country.

Prep Hoops currently operates websites and events in sixteen states, with several more scheduled to launch in the next few months. See http://www.prephoops.com for the latest company information.

Interested applicants should send their resume, writing samples, and a brief cover letter to nick@prephoopscolorado.com

Writing Intern Job Description

- Responsible for networking in the high school and grassroots basketball community to increase engagement with prospects and teams at all levels.
- Responsible for writing recruiting reports on high school basketball players in their states.
- Responsible for working with contributors in your state to provide diverse content covering prospects of all levels

Skills & Areas of Interest

- MUST be a hoops junkie
- Must be through at least one year of journalism or communications school
- Previous writing experience is a plus
- This is an unpaid position, but has the opportunity to grow into a paid position over time