

Want to learn JOURNALISM this summer?

The University of Arizona Journalism Diversity Workshop for Arizona High School Students will take place June 4-10, 2017, on the UA campus. Students will learn how to produce a news site and multimedia using equipment in our publication and photojournalism labs. They will gain experience in news writing, reporting, editing, digital design and photojournalism techniques. They'll also learn about ethics and media law.

Who is eligible?

We are seeking students who will be juniors or seniors in fall 2017 and who show a serious interest in journalism and in pursuing higher education. Upcoming sophomores and graduating seniors will also be considered.

What about expenses?

Nearly all expenses, including registration, housing in UA dormitories, and some meals, are covered by the program. You will only be responsible for a few meals and incidental during the seven-day workshop.

How do I apply?

Interested students should submit an application accompanied by a short essay and a letter of recommendation from a teacher, adviser, administrator or mentor.

Applications are available at <http://journalism.arizona.edu/node/637>

Please download the form and mail completed application by April 8, 2017, to:

High School Workshop
School of Journalism
University of Arizona
P.O. Box 210158B
Tucson, Arizona 85721-0158

See The Chronicle's website at <http://thechronicleua.weebly.com/>
The Chronicle is produced by students in this workshop.

Questions? Contact the UA School of Journalism
(520) 621-7556