2020 Journalism Internships

The Wall Street Journal internship program is an opportunity for college juniors and seniors and graduate students to be fully immersed in our Pulitzer Prize-winning newsroom, working with some of the best journalists in the world.

The 10-week paid internship program offers hands-on work experience and one-on-one mentorship, plus orientation and tailored training sessions. Interns are treated like full-time staff members and are encouraged to pitch their own stories and projects. The summer 2019 interns reported front-page news, created interactive graphics, edited photo projects, wrote colorful features, produced videos, curated and published our journalism across platforms, and much more.

We strive to be a welcoming, diverse newsroom. You don’t need to be an expert in business or finance to apply, but you do need to be curious and eager to learn.

The program has a storied history as a pipeline to a full-time job at the Journal, whether immediately or down the road.

Apply at wsj.jobs for winter and summer internships in the U.S. by Nov. 1 and in Europe by Dec. 1.

In Europe:
Reporting (multiple cities)
Video

In the United States:
Reporting (multiple cities)
Graphics
Video
Photo Editing
Data Reporting
Data Science
Product Design
WSJ. Magazine
In Asia:
Local internships are available in Asia throughout the year. Students must be enrolled in schools where the internship is based. Strong language skills are required. If you're interested, please contact Yumiko Ono at yumiko.ono@wsj.com.