Looking for an intern?

- Internships for credit must offer supervision by a communications professional.
- The School of Journalism requires supervisors to fill out and submit an evaluation form at the conclusion of internships for credit.
- To receive academic credit from the School of Journalism, a student must be a journalism major, earn a grade of “C” or better in JOUR 205 (Reporting the News, which is a beginning reporting class), have achieved at least sophomore standing, register for JOUR 493 (part-time internship) or JOUR 393 (full-time internship), and turn in clips or tapes (CDs or DVDs) at the end of the semester. (Students who are not in a writing, editing, photography or design position turn in a research paper.) Graduate students in journalism may petition to apply for internship credit without having taken the beginning reporting course for graduate students.
- Students may repeat an internship at the same organization once (for a total of two terms) and may receive internship credit for a maximum of three internships.
- Students who drop the course at any time before the completion of the internship are no longer eligible for credit. In this case, the internship coordinator will notify the internship supervisor that the student is not enrolled for credit.
- Students enrolled in part-time internships for 1 credit put in about 8 hours per week during the semester for a total of 120 hours.
- Students enrolled in the summer for full-time internships (not offered during the school year except by special petition) put in 240 hours for 3 units and work out a schedule with their supervisor.

Do you have an internship opportunity for a University of Arizona journalism student? Please send an e-mail to lbutton@email.arizona.edu with the following information:

- Position title
- Name of organization
- Location
- Time frame (fall; spring; summer; other specified period of time)
- Description
- Qualifications (this may include preferred or required journalism coursework; please call the internship coordinator if you need assistance with this)
- Salary (if applicable)
- Application instructions (please include contact information and deadlines, if any)
- Other relevant information

Questions and materials should be directed to: Lisa Button
Internship Coordinator
School of Journalism
Marshall Building, Room 323
PO Box 210158B
Tucson, AZ 85721-0158
(520) 626-9219; Fax 621-7557
lbutton@email.arizona.edu